OUTING WITH PAMILY.

The two engineers were unable to reach Coroner Hottshauser over the telephone. It was said he and his family had gone away for the day. They got Coroner Winterbottom, at Nyack, but he was unwilling to say more than they might use their own jodgment, as it was not his case. In the mean time Hargineer Ridgway had looked over the situation for himself and telephoned to Chairman McCall, who went to the some, talked with Mr. Ridgway and then told the police on hand that Mr. Ridgway was to have full charge of the rescue and repair work.

Chairman McCall informed the police that if Mr. Ridgway said to blast, then blast it must be, and it anyone tried to interfere to arrest him. The police were in a quandary and the inspector of the district finally erdered them to use their judgment in case of a clash of authority.

But there was no clash. The blasting went on and as a result the body of Patrick Joys, an under foreman, was found at 18.6 last night and the body of John Green, a driller, was found at 1.15 this morning. Jeye and Green had been taiking together when the cave-in buried them. It is believed there are no
